

Last Man Alive

19 20 13

Chapter 1 by Eagle Rex

The last man alive on Earth sat alone in a room. There was a knock on the door.

Chapter 2 by Luke Meyers

"Come in, dear."

Chapter 3 by intellikat

It was the last woman alive on Earth. And boy, did she look good tonight. And not just because she was the last woman alive on Earth (although that probably had a lot to do with it).

Chapter 4 by intellikat

The last man alive undressed her with his eyes... his mind... and then he undressed her with his big, beefy hands. Hands that had laboured for many years as a lowly dock worker in the days before the plague. In the days before the Earth's population was decimated and the last man alive found himself remaining due to a strange fluke. A genetic predisposition that protected him from the deadly virus.

But now, here he was, astounded that another human being was alive. And one with a smoking hot bod and the brains to match, of course. He couldn't believe his luck. But as he lifted her skirt and dropped her panties, he cursed under his whiskey-laden breath.
